ETOBICOKE PEPSI TOP TEAM NAG RECORD IN RELAY

Etobicoke Pepsi easily won the age group team championships as Ontario swimmers brought the season to a climax.

One national age group record was betterd as Etobicoke's 13-14 boys 4x50 medley relay posted a 1:57.77.

Performances were better than last year as 32 individual events (out of 52) were won with faster times than a year ago.

An added incentive for fast swimming was the selection of a provincial team of 24 to compete at the Far Westerns, in Concord, California, August 3-7.

Top performers were Joanne Malar, 12, from Hamilton-Wentworth winning both 100-200 back, breast and both IM's. Barrie Trojans' Matthew Barrett was the standout among the 11-12 year-olds winning the 100 free, breast and fly, 200 IM, and battling NYAC's Joon-Keon Chang in the 200 fly and IM's.

Nancy Sweetnam,14 from Lindsay won six events to easily earn high-point honours among the 13-14 girls. Etobicoke Pepsi's Michael Mason with four firsts was the top performer among the 13-14 boys. He was part of two relays, the 4x50 medley won in record time while the 4x50 free was disqualified. ■

FAR FROM THE MADDING CROWDS

Have you every seen Hollywood's version of how swimmers train?

One swimmer in the pool with a personal coach looking intently at the pace clock.

When you're battling it out in morning practice for a spot in your lane you know how unrealistic that is, but there is one national team hopeful who swims like that all summer long.

Her name is Nancy Sweetnam. She lives in Lindsay, Ontario, a small town 120 kilometres north east of Toronto. She is coached by her mother.

At the Olympic Trials coaches from all over Canada were asking, 'Where is Lindsay and who is this girl?'.

Nancy, 14, had the second fastest qualifying time for the 200 individual medley, just behind Etobicoke sensation Allison Higson. She ended up placing an impressive fourth. She also placed sixth in the 200 breaststroke.

"No I'm not disappointed," said her mother and coach, Marian Sweetnam. "I believe it is important that she progress at a steady rate. If she misses one stage, or jumps forward too quickly, it could be detrimental to her long term development.

"I thought she could make finals. I know she has talent. It's the people who don't know her who are surprised. Our program is low profile because we don't go to a lot of swim meets."

A big one they missed was Winter Nationals in February, as they failed to enter the meet only to have Nancy swim 1:11.77 at the Ontario Age Groups a week before. She would have been a finalist in Edmonton.

During the year Nancy trains with the other members of the Lindsay Lightningbolts, but after school ends she and her brother are often the only ones from the club left in the pool, as the bulk of the club escapes to cottage country.

"We started as a recreational club," said Marian Sweetnam. "We have sixty swimmers in our club and a limited amount of pool time. I think we have talented swimmers in Lindsay and offer a high quality program. With only have seven (7) hours of pool time, and we really work. We have a quality not quantity orientation.

"We don't have time for a lot of the fun activities that other clubs have because of this, but the kids work and they work hard.

"Our club philosophy is to develop the swimmer's skills, improve their technique and swim in a competitive environment. We also try to help them become more developed socially and personally. The competitive aspect is not first, all these other things are.

"Sometimes I have problems motivating them to see beyond swimming. It's especially hard in a small town like this, but they are willing to improve.

"By necessity I've ended up as head coach here," she said. "I started out as a novice coach nine years ago, all the swimmers I coach now started out with me when they were eight or nine years old.

"I decided that as a coach I have to become more educated and it is up to me to bring that information back to the club. I think Ontario coaches are fantastic. All you have to do is pick up your phone and they are eager to talk. Everyone is so competitive on the deck, but when you ask them a question they are so open and willing to help. If it wasn't for those people we wouldn't be where we are today."

The only meet that Nancy has in her sights this summer is The Manufacturers Swim Nationals at Etobicoke. Her coach/mother expects that she will equal or improve on her times from the spring.

"As the year goes along her endurance has been improving and she is getting stronger. I wasn't surprised by her performances, but I think the people who don't know her have been. She will keep improving." ■

BACKWASH

Backwash features short clips, gossip, letters and opinion. Contributions are welcomed. Now for the rumours behind the news.

Only imperialist running dogs take dollars. We take zlotys. Remember once upon a time when swimming was considered an amateur sport. That time is long gone. Finally the eastern bloc countries are admitting to what everyone has suspected. It is reported that Polish freestyler, Artur Wojdat, received one million zlotys for his recent world record swim in the 400 free.

Now we're not sure how many dollars, lire or francs that translates into, but the average Polish worker makes 50,000 zlotys per month. The extra income should give the eastern bloc swimmer a special capitalist incentive to keep swimming.

Gross income. Last spring Michael Gross had a falling out with the West German swimming federation. They tried to lay claim to a portion of his loot saying he wouldn't be where he is today without them. Gross was not amused, refused to hand over the money and scratched several meets. They're currently at a stand-off.

There have been rumours that Gross has earned in excess of $2 million dollars because of swimming. Whether that is the correct amount or a slight exaggeration, Gross doesn't seem to be suffering financial pains.

He can usually be seen arriving at morning practice in his brand new Porshe, and on the steering wheel of his car are his new world record goal times for the 200 free (1:46.71) and the 200 fly (1:55.84). Think fast while driving fast.

With enough money, comrade, we can win the Olympics or at least make it on Bowling for Dollars. The East German sports juggernaut rolls on, but it's an expensive a machine. Recently released figures show just how expensive the pursuit of excellence can be. The East German annual sports budget is $660 million U.S. dollars per year, or about 1% of their national budget. Their top sports university, the German College for Physical Culture, receives $22 million U.S. per year.

With a population of only 3.6 million, there are 84,457 people who participate in swimming at some level and a whooping 557,942 who play soccer.

The big surprise is that the fourth most popular sport in East Germany is...bowling, a sport known more for its natural compatibility with beer drinking than for its sheer athletic prowess. Maybe Leipzig and Buffalo, N.Y. could become twin cities. (Canada's sport budget this year is just under $60 million.)

Now if you could just help me get this couch through the window. Just as everyone is congratulating themselves that Canadian university swimming has finally come into its own, someone goes and boots it back to the cellar.

It seems that the last night of the CIAU swimming championships the revelry got a little out of hand and swimmers started to redecorate downtown Toronto's Town Inn hotel á la Keith Moon.

There was over $1,200 in damages done, and the end result is that the CIAU has banned swimming from its 1989 roster. It will not allow swimming to hold a national university championship; a move which will put senior swimming back a decade or more.

Despite how upset the coaches are, the CIAU does not feel that they are over-reacting by cancelling the meet. Traditionally the last night of the championship has been a blow out.

In 1987 Dalhousie University tried to skirt the problem by hiring security guards for each floor of the hotel that the swimmers were rooming in. This was something that was overlooked by U of T when they hosted the 1988 meet, but then you don't often think of policing swimmers in the same manner as British football fans.

The plot gets slightly messier. The SNC has earmarked $250,000 for university swimming, but since there will be no championship they don't want to hand over the money. The coaches have cried 'foul', because the SNC had signed a contract with them in May. The coaches are threatening to sue if the grant does not come through.

There still may be a chance that swimming can shovel themselves out of this mess. The CIAU has hinted that if the coaches agree to draw up a responsibility clause, one that will have a school barred for a year if even one of their swimmers goofs up, then swimming may be able to look forward to a 1989 championship. But if this doesn't happen, and there is a possibility it won't, expect to see more talented Canucks heading south for a shot at the NCAA's.

Calgary loses Lafontaine. Pierre Lafontaine, the assistant coach at UCSC, has decided to leave Deryk, the Dinos and luge behind. He is saddling up and heading off to Tucson, Arizona. It seems that Dennis Pursely, the former coach of the Edmonton based Olympian Swim Club is starting up a new super power club in Tucson and Lafontaine wants to be a part of it.

If you read enough newspapers you'll eventually find what you want. One of the 200 diligent staff-writers at Backwash was recently reading L'Equipe, the world's primo sports newspaper, and saw an article about Canadian breaststroker Marco Cavazzoni (at least last time we checked he was Canadian).

The Paris based newspaper reported that Cavazzoni might try to switch countries and swim for France at the Olympics. At a meet in Monaco L'Equipe discussed the possibilities of this with Cavazzoni. "I have dual Canadian/French citizenship," he said. "My mother is French."

FINA prohibits athletes from swimming for another country after they have already chosen their 'sports nationality'. They have to reside in the new country for at least 12 months before they can swim for them. Cavazzoni swam for Canada at the Pan-Ams and will likely find resistance if he tries to jump borders.

On the small screen. Those of you who won't be able to make it to Etobicoke for The Manufacturers Swim Nationals can watch the meet Saturday, August 20th on CBC Sportsweekend. It should be exciting to see who will nail down the open spots on the Olympic team and which which club will walk away with the team trophies.

Our mistake. It seems that there was a mistake in the labelling of the 'Celebrity Tattoos' last month. The tattoo with the snappy lightningbolt is just above the heart of Victoria's blue-eyed wonder, Jon Kelly, not NYAC's Vlastimil Cerny. Sorry for the mix up.

RECORD HOLDER JANE KERR ON STRATEGIES FOR THE 200 FREE

PREPARATION

I always used to think about my race in advance, now after years of racing I don't think about it in the same way.

You go through your race plan in workout, keep practicing it and practicing it and by the time you get on the blocks it will come naturally.

Months before I even get to it, I know how I'm going to swim my race. If you practice in your workouts like you plan to swim in the meet you get used to the feel and how much of a difference there are between 50's when you race a 200 free.

I have been pulled into different race strategies by other swimmers and it isn't good to be trapped. If you keep practicing your race this won't happen.

I haven't had it happen in the last year. I know how I want to race it. It is now a built-in system .

I tend to kick too far apart so I have to make sure I keep my kick small and consistent. To help me think about it I divide the races into quarters. In a 100 I usually sprint my first 25, using my legs. For the second 25 I back off my legs and build going into the wall. I kick as hard as I can the third 25 and concentrate on making sure my kick is right the last 25.

The 200 is a "sprint strategy" race. There is not too much benefit in going out fast and then dying. I do it by 50's. I approach it as four separate 50's. The one thing I aim for is really nailing the third 50 and then coming home strong the last 50. I still have to concentrate on not going out too fast on my first 50, making sure I'm long and not use my legs too much.

Each time you race you have to do it the same way. Try to split it correctly. If you examine all of the world records for the 200 you'll see that there is a consistent pattern in how they were split (1 1/2 and 2 seconds between the first and second hundred.).

THE RACE

To warm up for the 200 I always do some fly, because it helps me with the finish of my stroke in freestyle. For a 200 I will do two or three 50's on an interval descending. I use the warm-up to think about pacing and how to use my legs.

From the start you just go. You don't have to think about anything. When I come off the wall I really have to concentrate. I remember the basics; to keep my head up, keep my kick small. When I get tired my stroke tends to be short and my kick starts getting bigger. In practice when you fall apart, you have your coach to correct it, so in a race start thinking about all the things your coach has been telling you.

For the third 50 I try to be in a good position at the 100 to make a move on people. Build going into the 100 wall for the third 50. When you come off it shouldn't be like an explosion, it should be like another build, so that you can come back faster. This is where I start remembering to keep long and kick consistently.

For the final 50 sprint, use everything you have left and come home hard. If you are in a good race you'll be fine and won't notice the pain.

PRACTICE

Practice make perfect. It's a cliche, but it is true.

For the 200 we do broken swims. We have partners and they time our splits. The first one you try to split correctly, not thinking of the time and then we build up the speed. If you don't split it right when you get faster. Then slow down, do it right and go fast next time.

The coach helps as much as the swimmer, Bergen is always taking our splits, making sure we are negative splitting etc. It's not always easy to see the clock when you're swimming. The coach should be there.

Splitting a 200 correctly is something I've learned to do by constant practice. I use to hate swimming the 200 because I didn't know how to race it. Now I've learned how to, it has become my favorite event. It is just practicing and practicing. When you get to a meet you don't have to think about it. ■

RECORD BREAKER SUIT FROM SPEEDO

A new high tech hydrodynamic suit helped Allison break the 200 metres breaststroke world record during the Canadian Olympic Trials in Montreal.

Every hundredth of a second counts when your goal is a world record. Allison and several other top Canadian female swimmers are finding the extra fractions wearing Speedo's new state of the art "Record Breaker" racing suit.

The Speedo Record Breaker suit had undergone extensive testing and design over the last 12 months. Canadian coaches Paul Bergen of Etobicoke Pepsi Swimming and Byron MacDonald of the University of Toronto have been working with Loretta Bell, Sports Promotion Manager of Speedo Canada, to design the world's fastest suit.

The suit is made of a fabric introduced in 1986. This fabric, nicknamed "paper" by swimmers, is a woven nylon/lycra blend. The extremely fine thread and tight weave (compared to normal knit lycra) creates the crisp paper thin fabric. When the suit gets wet it clings to the body creating the feeling of a second skin. This adhesion creates minimal drag for the swimmer.

The Record Breaker suit has a strap system which allows for even distribution of strap tension over the surface of the back and shoulders causing reduced muscle stress and greater freedom of arm and shoulder movement.

The leg holes and hips are cut up high to reduce stress on the hip joint as well as allowing greater range of movement for the hips and legs.

The suit also has a unique rear-seam system designed to eliminate all potential suit gapping along the lumbar region.

Loretta Bell of Speedo plans further fine tuning of the Record Breaker between now and the Olympic Games where Speedo will be outfitting the entire Canadian Olympic Swimming Team. Bell says of Speedo's role, "Speedo Canada is pleased and honoured to have created a swim suit that can assist Canadian swimmers in achieving their goals and dreams this Olympic year."

Speedo Canada is the official supplier of swimwear and equipment to the 1988 Candian Olympic Swimming, Diving, Synchronized Swimming and Water Polo Teams.

HOLY VISION, BATMAN...

IT'S LEADER!

Take a gasp at Leader's new line of world-class goggles: The CRYSTAL, SENIOR BUBBLE, and MPA. These are mean designs that look good, and stay on tight. Why? Because each model is armed with the notorious "poly-seal". A protective cloak against salt and chlorine. And they're tough too – a secret polycarbonate formula that stands up to any avenger.

"Ok, Batman, I think I get the picture. This is some dynamic trio."
